The New Security in the 21st Century

Gary Hart

Former United Senator from Colorado and currently Wirth Chair Professor at the University of Colorado

Gary Hart is one of the nation's foremost authorities on national security. During his 12 years in the Senate, he served on the Armed Services Committee, where he specialized in nuclear arms control. More recently, he was co-chair of the US Commission on National Security for the 21st Century. The Commission's report, "Road Map for National Security: Imperative for Change" was presented to President George Bush in January 2001.
